

SOUTH AFRICAN EXILE

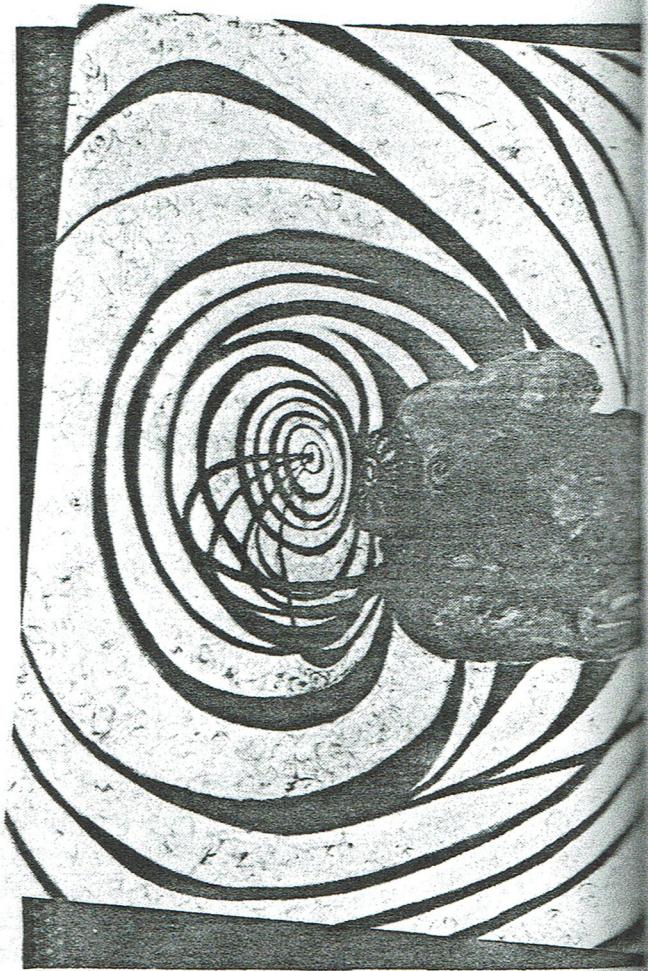

"teacher, teacher!"

I English Syllabus: A Century of South African Short Stories

withering heights
averted eyes
pride and prejudice
newshid cries —
I fly

this heart
—of darkness
is waiting for god...
crossocean

home is the big english department in the sky where ignorant armies flash—masturbate by night
sun is blindfire

II only Helen Joseph drips with egg Beyers Naudé old-Afrikaans, detention-bent when

-----rush to the streets to "free Mandela"

BUT AMANDLA WAS A SELF-CONSCIOUS FIST ON A LIMP-RAISED ARM AND THE WORDS...THE WORDS TO "NKOSI, SIKELEL'I..." . . .

John Vorster Square tempts yet we drove to black and gold parties work in five star hotels
- some of our best friends are maids

"Play, play, play!"
Baas, we crack tried -

shufflesmiled clique

did talk earnest

in late-nite cafes, hobby: anti-apartheid "IF YOU GO DOWN TO THE WOODS TODAY...."
outside

"the Brixton tower is falling down, falling down, falling down...."
SING!

Soweto smoke stark
billboard wasteland
Bantu Beer skinlightening hairstraightening;
billboards peel
under smashed giraffe street lamps dust tufts of grass - soccer balls bounce against cell houses blocks in a building block game

"the horror...."

I flew
running on the streets

III wait;
far away in the land of Soweto
"everything is under control"

this:

at a greasy cactus thorn
an ant staggers under a sugar granule sticky in the blowing heat

VIR VOK EN VADERLAND

"suikerbossie'k wil jou hē wat sal jou mama daarvan se..."

sip blood on the stoep at dusk sun swirling time Jo 'burg painted pink with Houghton pine trees;
ring the bell for dinner call the girl

"MORNING, NKOSI!"

mouths can't round any longer

"too ghastly to contemplate"

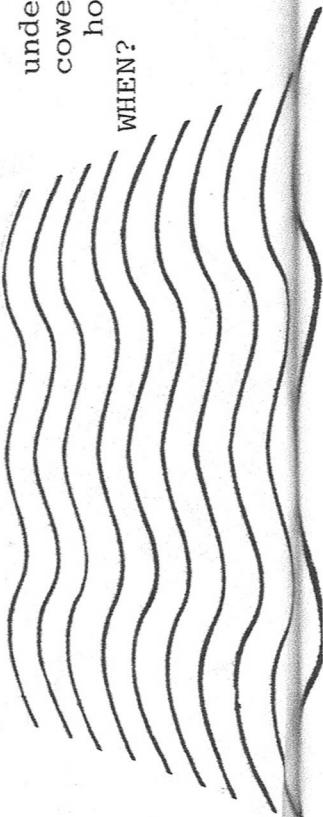

WHERE?

sing!
free Mandela

Mandela will be free to face the fucked-up bloodlooks of this historied...

a fly swats madam,
the puppy's drowning in the
swimming pool, globs of cut ooze in under the kitchen door across the newspapers for fat from frying;
under the bed teeth rattle cower in two-story Houghton home - lock the gate on the landing

WHEN?

not sniffed back

Hail the who?
Hail the who?
Mandela will not free
"Blacks will wee in the sea"
B A ! B A A !

Azania

come

no drums here

sun as bloodshot eyes gritty in the streets where Uhuru is called mist made of light through a dustgauze curtain

IV

dying
away from home

I
kill self (Brandt Fourie speaks on TV ungrammatically)

in dreamcouch
beaches are being desegregated
'phones echo under the sea and tears can well now here in Amerika
San Diego
where the city suspension-bridges women with plaits and babies

--Ian Barnard
